There was a king who had four sons. The three older boys were sturdy, half-grown lads; the youngest, Alfred, was a slender, fair-haired child. One day when they were with their mother, she showed them a wonderful book. She turned the leaves and showed them the strange letters. She showed them the beautiful pictures, and told them how they had been drawn and painted. They admired the book very much, for they had never seen anything like it. "But the best part of it is the story which it tells," said their mother.
